2. A copy of the report and its annexes, if any, is being transmitted to the International Bureau for communication to all the elected Offices.

4. REMINDER

The applicant must enter the national phase before each elected Office by performing certain acts (filing translations and paying national fees) within 30 months from the priority date (or later in some Offices) (Article 39(1)) (see also the reminder sent by the International Bureau with Form PCT/IB/301).

Where a translation of the international application must be furnished to an elected Office, that translation must contain a translation of any annexes to the international preliminary report on patentability. It is the applicant's responsibility to prepare and furnish such translation directly to each elected Office concerned.

For further details on the applicable time limits and requirements of the elected Offices, see Volume II of the PCT Applicant's Guide.

The applicant's attention is drawn to Article 33(5), which provides that the criteria of novelty, inventive step and industrial applicability described in Article 33(2) to (4) merely serve the purposes of international preliminary examination and that "any Contracting State may apply additional or different criteria for the purposes of deciding whether, in that State, the claimed inventions is patentable or not" (see also Article 27(5)). Such additional criteria may relate, for example, to exemptions from patentability, requirements for enabling disclosure, clarity and support for the claims.

Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: US 2004/188104 A1 (BORISOV YULIAN Y [RU] ET AL) 30 September 2004 (2004-09-30)

The document D1 is regarded as being the closest prior art to the subject-matter of claim 1, and shows (the references in parentheses applying to this document): a mist generating apparatus having a longitudinal axis and comprising first and second opposing surfaces which define a transport fluid nozzle therebetween; and a working fluid passage (632) having an inlet connectable to a supply of working fluid, and an outlet on one of the first and second surfaces, the outlet communicating with the transport fluid nozzle (see fig.6b); wherein the transport fluid nozzle has a nozzle inlet (662) connectable to a supply of transport fluid, a nozzle outlet (672), and a throat portion (670) intermediate the nozzle inlet and nozzle outlet, and wherein the transport fluid nozzle projects radially from the longitudinal axis such that the nozzle defines a rotational angle about the longitudinal axis.

The subject-matter of claim 1 differs from this known apparatus in that the nozzle throat has a cross sectional area which is less than that of either the nozzle inlet or the nozzle outlet.

The subject-matter of claim 1 is therefore new (Article 33(2) PCT).

The problem to be solved by the present invention may be regarded as improving the efficiency of mist generating.

The solution to this problem proposed in claim 1 of the present application is considered as involving an inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT) for the following reasons: The particular configuration of the nozzle, resulting in more efficient mist generating, is not suggested by the prior-art available. Even if the problem can be considered as known, no hints can be found in the present state of the art that teach to modify the known mist generating apparatus to arrive at the apparatus as claimed.

The same reasoning applies, mutatis mutandis, to the subject-matter of the corresponding independent claims 22 and 32, which therefore are also considered new and inventive.

Claims 2-21, 23-31 are dependent on claims 1 and 22 respectively and as such also meet the requirements of the PCT with respect to novelty and inventive step.

Re Item VII

Certain defects in the international application

The features of the claims are not provided with reference signs placed in parentheses (Rule 6.2(b) PCT).

Re Item VIII

Certain observations on the international application

The term 'substantially' used in claims 5, 12, 16, 24 is vague and unclear and leaves the reader in doubt as to the meaning of the technical features to which it refers, thereby rendering the definition of the subject-matter of said claims unclear, Article 6 PCT.
